Namokaar Mantra

Namo Ari-han-ta-nam

I bow to the Arihants, the perfected human beings

Namo Siddh-a-nam

I bow to the Siddhas, liberated bodiless souls

Namo Ayariyanam

I bow to the Acharyas, the heads of congregations

Namo Uva-jjha-ya-nam

I bow to the Upadhyayas, the spiritual teachers

Namo Loye Sav-va Sahu-nam

I bow to the spiritual practitioners in the universe, Sadhus

Eso Panch Namu-Karo

This five fold obeisance mantra

Sav-va Pava-ppana-sano

Destroys all sins and obstacles

Mangal-a-nam Cha Savve-sim

And of all auspicious repetitions

Padh-amam Hava-yi Man-galam

Is the first and foremost.

Jain Symbol

The Jain Symbol is a congregation of various symbols, each having a deeper meaning. This symbol was adopted by all sects of Jainism to commemorate the 2500th anniversary of the nirvana of Lord Mahavira.

Jains believe that this universe was neither created by anyone, nor can it be destroyed by anyone. It may change its form, but otherwise, it has always been and will always be here.

The outline of the symbol is defined as the universe (Lok). The lower part of the symbol represents the seven hells (Naraki). The middle part of the universe contains the Earth and the planets (Manushyalok). The upper part contains the heavenly abodes (Devlok) of all the celestial beings and abode of the Siddhas (Siddhashila).

The raised hand means stop. The word in the center of the wheel, "Ahimsa" means non-violence. Between these two phrases, we are reminded to stop for a minute and think twice before doing anything. This gives us a chance to scrutinize our activities to be sure that they will not hurt anyone by our words, thoughts, or actions. The wheel in the center of the hand shows that if we ignore these warnings and carry on violent activities, then just as the wheel goes round and round, we will go round and round through the cycles of birth and death.

The four arms of the swastika remind us that during the cycles of birth and death we may be born into any one of the four destinies: heavenly beings, human beings, animal beings, (including birds, bugs, and plants) and hellish beings. Our aim should be the liberation and not the rebirth. To show how we can do this, the swastika reminds us that we should become the pillars of the four fold Jain Sangh, then only can we achieve liberation.

The four pillars of the Jain Sangh are sādhus, sādhis, shrāvaks, and shrāvikās. This means that first, we should strive to be a true shrāvaks or shrāvikās, and when we can overcome our social attachments, we should renounce the worldly life and follow the path of a sādhu or sādhi to be liberated.

The three dots above the swastika represent the three jewels of Jainism: Samyak Darshan (Right Faith), Samyak gyan (Right Knowledge), and Samyak Charitra (Right Conduct). Only when we have all three (right knowledge, right faith, and right conduct) together can we achieve liberation.

Having Right faith means that one must have faith in what is told by the Jinas, who were omniscient. Having Right Knowledge means understanding the teachings of Kevali Bhagwan, firmly believing that the body and soul are separate and that the soul, not the body is capable of attaining salvation. Right Conduct means that our actions should be devoid of attachment and hatred.

At the top part of the Jain Universe symbol is a small curved arc that represents the abode of the Siddhas. It is known as the Siddhashila. It is the final resting place of the liberated souls. The dot at the very top represents a siddha. In order to achieve this stage, a soul must destroy all attached karmas. Every living being should strive for this state of the Salvation or Liberation.

A Brief Outline Of Jain Religion

Let us first understand certain terms.

- A Jina is he who subdues attachment.
- The followers of Jinas are Jains.
- The way of good life tempered compassion and concern for welfare of others is dharma.
- Dharma is the pure nature of self.
- There are many kinds of dharma that serve as instrumental causes of manifestation of self.
- Forbearance, modesty, sincerity, freedom from greed, thoughtfulness, restraint, penance, renunciation, freedom from the sense of ownership and celibacy- these excellent virtues lead to the path of supreme dharma which is right faith, right knowledge and right conduct.
- Dharma brings equanimity in universal consciousness.

It is a special feature of the Jain religion that its promulgator is the omniscient -Veetaraṅga (one who is free from attachment), who showers only love and mercy on worldly souls and shows them the right path. Externally, the Jain religion purifies practical life and internally, it purifies the soul. The result of both these purifications is realization of the self, which leads to the final liberation and unobstructed bliss. The human soul is capable of final liberation. The chief mantra of Jain religion is the Namokaar Mantra. There are four shelters - Arihanta, Siddha, Sadhu and the religion promulgated by omniscient Gods. The Jain religion believes in the path shown by the twenty-four Tirthankars. Every Tirthankar establishes the fourfold sangh of monks, nuns, laymen and laywomen.

There are four conditions of soul after death - the life of celestial beings, the life of humans, the life of lower animals and the life of hellish beings.

The Jain monk keeps the five great vows- ahimsa, truthfulness, non-stealing, and celibacy and non- attachment. The ultimate means of final liberation according to the Jain religion is meditation.

What is the contribution of Jainism to society?

The Jain religion believes in the pure state of the self and teaches purification. It teaches to cultivate the attitude of friendliness, admiration, compassion and indifference towards all living beings. Not a king, nor an emperor, nor a pauper nor anyone else can get happiness by hurting others. All living beings have an equal right to live.

A householder's life involves some violence, but Jainism teaches us do even indispensable duties with awareness and carefulness.

"Live and let live."

This is the motto of Jainism. Human life is too highly valuable to be entrusted to non- restraint. If a diamond falls from the hands of a merchant sitting on the desk in ship in the midst of the sea, he cannot get it back. similarly human life, if wasted away, is very difficult to get. Indulging in pleasures of senses, anger, selfish acts and worldly affairs wastes the human life. The best aim of human life is realization of self. For this, vices should be scaled down and virtues should be scaled up. It is necessary to live a restrained life preached by guru.

In order to develop compassion, nobility, equanimity, integrity and good conduct, we should engage in worship and keep company with saintly people. Know that the samsara is full of miseries and in order to cross it, practice the pure religion. If you live a householder's life, insist on ethics, good conduct and kindness and aspire to live a monk's life.

Yun dukhi jan-kar, ho rattan pe mahar, veer pyare...

Pooja: What it is!

Performing pooja is a way to recite the virtues of the Teerthankars (the 24 teachers of Jain Dharma in this era) and remind ourselves that we also possess these virtues. (Siddha Swaroopo-ham). Worldly desires and attachments keep us trapped in continuous cycle of birth and death in this world, but by following the path of the Teerthankars we can also be freed from the miseries of this world and attain Moksha. Atleast one pooja is considered ESSENTIAL every day without fail.

While there are many poojas dedicated to individual Teerthankars, these are not the only kind of poojas. The foremost of the poojas is Dev-Shastra-Guru Pooja, dedicated to the three most revered religious teachers: Teerthankars (dev), Jain Scriptures (shastra), and Jain saints and monks (guru). Complete faith in these three leads to Samyak Darshan (Perfect Faith) and, ultimately, to Moksha. Thus, this pooja includes all the worshipable objects.

The Nav Devta Pooja is dedicated to the nine icons of Jain religion; e.g., the five Par-mesthis - Arihantas, Siddhas, Acharyas, Upadhyayas, and Sadhus, Jin Dharm (the Jain Dharma), Jin Aagam (Jain Scriptures), Jin Chaitya (idols of Teerthankars) and, Jin Chaitya-lay (Jain Temple).

Certain poojas are associated with special occasions, memorable days or religious festivals. These include: Ashtahnik pooja, Das Lakshan Dharm-Pooja, Kalyanak pooja, Diwali Pooja, Raksha Bandhan Pooja, etc. Some poojas are specifically performed to revise the knowledge of specific sets of principles, teachings, beliefs or basic tenets of Jainism, such as the Ratn-traya Pooja and Solah Karan Pooja; while some poojas intend worships or honor of holy sites of pilgrimage in Jainism (such as the Panch Meru Pooja). Each of these poojas is done at specific times throughout the year and they all help to maintain and re-strengthen our faith in our Dharma.

Each pooja is concluded by reciting an Adoration (the Jaya Mala). In Jaya Mala, we recall the virtues of worshipped object (Teerthankars, Religious events, festivals, spiritual leaders, Jain beliefs, holy lands, etc.). By reciting these virtues, we remind ourselves of the greatness of Jain Dharma, and, that our soul, just as all others, possesses the capacity of attaining Moksha, a goal towards which we should strive daily.

Asht-Dravya

All pooja are done with the eight substances (ashta-dravya). These are as under:

1. Jal

Jal (pure water) is offered aiming to rid oneself of the cycle of birth, aging and death. Every living being is continuously traveling through the the univers in various forms, repeatedly enduring the miseries of birth and death. Jal reminds us to live life as pure as water in the hopes of one day attaining liberation from this cycle in Moksha. (Janm Jara Mrityu Vinashnay)

2. Chandan

Chandan (sandal or saffron water) is offered to reduce the suffering that our being endures in this world. It provides a natural cooling effect, proving relief from the worldly anguish. (Sansaar taap vinashnay)

3. Akshat

Akshat (pure white rice) means terminated, rid of end; like the rice, once removed from its husk, does not give life to another rice grain, once the soul leaves the cycle of birth and death by attaining its purest form, it no more returns to this cycle. Akshat Is offered in the hope of one day attaining the endless bliss of Moksha. (Akshay pad praptaay)

4. Pushp

Pushp (saffron-colored rice) literally means flower and symbolizes the sensual pleasures of this world. By offering this, we are abandoning all worldly desires and passions, which lead to the influx of karmas. (Kaam-baan Vidhvans-naay). Saffron-colored rice is used instead of flowers to avoid the violence to both the flowers and insects as sociated with picking flowers.

5. Naivedya

Naivedya (pieces of dry coconut) means tasty food offered with the goal of getting rid of the disease of hunger, the principal deterrent in conquering five senses, necessary for attaining Moksha. Offering it singnifies the hope of worshipper to be able to control and, ultimately, eliminate the desire for food. (Kshudhha rog Vinas-naay). Dry coconut Pieces are used for avoiding violence in rotting of actual food.

6. Deep

Deepak (saffron-colored pieces of dry coconut or a diya (oil lamp)) On the journey towards liberation, deep is offered so that the darkness of ignorance and false beliefs by which we are surrounded in this world is destroyed. (Moh-andhakar Vinash-naay). Dry coconut Pieces are used for avoiding violence in burning of oil lamp.

7. Dhoop

Dhoop (clove/sandal dust) is offered to destroy the eight karmas, which will lead to Moksha. (Asht-karma Vindhvansanaay).

8. Phal

Fruit (almonds, clove, coconut, etc) Moksha is considered the ultimate Fruit. We offerthem to get this fruit. (Moksh Phal Praptay). Whole almonds, cloves and coconuts are preferred over fresh fruit to avoid violence in harming insects and the impurity of decaying fruits.

Arghya

Arghya (mixture of the eight substances above), after completing the the worship by offering above 8 individual substances is also offered, with the hope of attaining Moksha (Anarghya pad Praptaye). Also, the Arghya alone can be offered instead of complete pooja with all eight dravyas in case of paucity of time.

Start Worship

Consequent to Abhishek and return of the idol on its seat in Veditakjee, the process of worship is initiated by recital of the verses as below:

Vinay Paath

Ih vidhi thaade hoy ke, pra-tham padhain yo Paath,
Dhanya jinesh-var dev tum, naash-ey karam-ju aath.
Anant cha-tush-tay key dhani, tum hi ho sir-taj,
Mukti-vadhu key kant tum, teen bhuvan ke raj. ||1||

Tihu jag ki peeda haran, bhav-dadhi sho-san-haar,
Gyayak ho tum vishva key, Shiv-sukh key kar-taar.

Thaki naav bhav-dadhi vishey tum prabhu paar karey,
Khev-tiya tum ho prabhu Jay jay jay jin-dev.
Raag sa-hit jag mey rul-yo, miley sa-raagi dev,
Veet-raag bhent-yo abey, meto raag kutev. ||7||

Kit nigod kit nar-ki, kit tri-yanch a-gyan, Aaj dhan-ya manush bha-yo, paa-yo jin-var than.
Tum-ko puj-ey sur-pati, ahi-pati, nar-pati dev,
Dhan-ya bhag-ya mero bha-yo, karan lag-yo tum sev. ||8||

A-sha-ran key tum sha-ran ho, nir-aadhar aadhar,
Mey doo-bat bhav sindhu mey, khev laga-o paar.
Indr-adik gan-pati thak-ey, kar vinti bhag-van,
Ap-no virad nihar-key, ki-jey aap samaan ||9||

Tumh-ri nek su-drish-ti tey, jag ut-rat hey paar,
Ha! Ha! doo-bo jat haun, nek ni-haar ni-kaar.
Jo mey kah-hu aur so, to na mitey ur-jhar,
Meri to to son bane, ta tey karun pukaar. ||10||

Vando paa-cho param-guru, sur-guru van-dat jas,
Vighan-haran mangal-karan, puran param praksash.
Chou-beeso jin-pad namo, namo sharda maay,
Shiv-mag-sadhak-sadhu-nami, rachyo-Paath-sukh-daay. ||11||

Mangal Paath

Mangal murti param pad, panch dharo nit dhyan,
Haro a-mangal vishva ka, mangal-may Bhagwan. ||1||

Mangal jin-var pad namu, mangal arihant-dev,

Shanti Paath

Shanti nath mukh shashi unhari, sheel guna-vrat sam-yam dhari.

Lakhan ek-so-aath vira-jey, nir-khat nayan kamal dal la-jey.

Pan-cham chakra varti pad dhari, solam teerthan-kar sukh-kari.
Indra narendra puja jin nayak, namo shanti-hit shanti vidhayak.

Divya vi-tap puhupan ki varsha, dundubhi aasan vani sarsa.

Chhatra chamar bha-mandal bhari, ye tuv prati-harya man-hari.

Shanti jinesh shanti sukh-dayi, jagat-puja pujo shir nayi.
param shanty dee-jey ham sab-ko, padhain tin-hey puni char sangh ko.

Pujey jin-hey mukut-haar kirit lakey,

Indr-adi dev aru puja pad-abj jakey.

So Shanti nath var vansh jagat-pradip,

Mere liye kar-hi shanti sada anup.

Sampujako ko prati-palako ko, yatin ko yati-naayako ko.

Raja praja rashtra svadesh ko ley, keeje sukhi hey jin! Shanti ko dey.

Ho-vey sari praja ko sukh, bal-yut ho dharm-dhari na-resha.

Ho-vey varsha samay pe til-bhar na rahey vya-dhi-yo ka an-desha.

Ho-vey chori na jari su-samay var-tey ho na dush-kaal maari.

Sarey hi desh dharey jin-var varsh-ko jo sada sokhya kari.

Ghati karma jin nash kari, payo keval raj.

Shanti karo sab jagat mey, vrish-bha-dik jin-raj.

Shanti karo sab jagat mey, vrish-bha-dik jin-raj.

Shanti karo sab jagat mey, vrish-bha-dik jin-raj.

Shas-tro ka ho pathan sukh-da labh sat-san-gati ka,

Sad-vrato ka sujas kah-ke dosh dha-ku sabhi ka.

Bolu pya-rey vachan hit ke aapka roop dhyu-u,

Tou lo se-u charan jin-ke moksh jo lo na pa-u.

Tav pad mere hiy mey, mam hiy tere puneet char-no mey.

Tab lo leen rahu prabhu, jab lo paya na mukti pad mey-ne.

Akshar pad matra se, dushit jo kuch kaha gaya mujh se,

Kshama karo prabhu so sab, karuna kari puni chhudahu bhav dukh se.

Hey jag-bandhu jinesh-var, pa-u tav Charan Sharan bali-hari.
Maran sa-madhi su durlabh, karmo ka kshay su-bodh sukh-kari.

Visarjan Paath

Bin janey va jaan ke, rahi toot jo koy,
Tum prasad te param-guru, so sab puran hoy.

Pujan vidhi janu nahi, nahi janu ahvaan,
Aur visarjan hu nahi, kshama karo Bhagwan.

Mantra-heen dhan-heen hu, kriya heen jin-dev, kshama karo rakho mujhe, dehu charan ki sev.

Aaye jo jo dev-gan, puje bhakti praman,
Te sab ja-vahu kripa-kari apney apney than.

Shree Jin-var ki asika, lije sheesh chadhay,
Bhav-bhav ke paatak katey, dukh door ho jaay.

Jin Stuti

Mey tum charan kamal gunn gaay, bahu-vidhi bhakti karu man-laay.
Janm janm prabhu pa-u tohi, yah seva-fal dee-je mohi. ||1||

Kripa tihari ey-si hoy, ja-man maran mita-vey moy.
Baar-baar mey viniti karu, tum seya bhav-sagar taru. ||2||

Naam let sab dukh mit jaay, tum darshan dekhe prabhu aay.
Tum ho prabhu devan ke dev, mey to karu cha-ran tav sev. ||3||

Jin Pooja te sab sukh hoy, jin Pooja sam avar na koy.
Jin Pooja te swarg viman, anu-kram te paa-ve nir-van. ||4||

Mey aa-yo Poojan ke kaaj, mero janam sufal bhayo aaj.
Pooja kar-key nava-u sheesh, mam ap-radh
kshamahu jagadeesh. ||5||

Sukh dena dukh met-na, yahi tumhari baan.
Mo gareeb ki veen-ti, sun lee-jo Bhagwan.
Poojan kar-tey dev ka, aadi- madhya av-saan.
Svar-gani ke sukh bhog-kar, pavey moksh nidhaan.
Jey-si mahima tum vishey, or dharey nahi koy.
Jo suraj mey jyoti hey, nahi tara-gan soy.
Nath tiharey naam tey, agh chhin-mahi palaay.
Jyo dinkar prakash te, andh-kar vin-shaay.
Bahut pra-shansa kya karu, mey prabhu bahut a-gyan.
Puja vidhi janu nahi, sharan rakho Bhagwan.

Our Six Essential Duties

Dev-pooja, Guru-pastih, swaadhyayah, Samyamastapah,
Daanam cheti grihasthaanam shad-karmani diney-diney.

Following six essential duties should be performed by every Jain house holder every day in all conditions without failing, which get fulfilled just by doing pooja in temple.

- Dev-pooja : worship of Jinendra prabhu. It is the intention and purpose of this book.
- Guru-pasti : Respect ful Service of the jain saints, scholars and the elders like providing Shaastra (materials for religious studies), Aahar (Food) Aushadhi (health-care), Abhay (protection and shelter for stay).
- Swaadhyay : study of own soul (meditation), study of Jain scriptures, teaching Jainism, etc are the practiced forms of swadhyaay . It is also imbibed in performing the pooja though its careful and mindful recitation aiming at deeper understanding of the concepts of Jain Dharma and fuller realization of the potential that the individual possesses within self.
- Samyam : Control on the desires of five senses, and , Compassion for all life forms. Performing pooja in temple results in token fulfillment of this duty this duty, atleast till that time.
- Tap : Fasting /observing restrictions in food intakes, etc are practiced forms. Doing pooja with the vow of 'no intakes until pooja' helps token fulfillment of this duty.
- Daan : Doing pooja with the vow of 'Putting some money in temple gullak' helps token fulfillment of this duty.

The Jain Code of Conduct

The five vratas (vows):

1. Ahimsa - Non-violence in thought, word and deed,
2. Satya - To seek and speak the truth,
3. Achaurya - To behave honestly; never to take anything by force or theft,
4. Brahmacharya - To practice chastity in thought, word and deed,
5. Aparigraha - To practice non-acquisitiveness.

The vow of ahimsa is the first and pivotal vow. The other vows may be viewed as aspects of ahimsa, which together form an integrated code of conduct in the individual's quest for equanimity, and the three jewels (ratna-traya) of right faith, right knowledge and right conduct.

Maha Vratas (great vows) - These vows are undertaken at an austere and exacting level by the monks and nuns

Anu-vratas (atomic' or basic vows) - These vows are undertaken at a moderate and flexible level by householders. Underlying the Jain code of conduct is the emphatic assertion of individual responsibility towards one and all. Indeed, the entire universe is the forum of one's own conscience. The code is profoundly ecological in its secular thrust and its practical consequences.

2. Kindness to animals

The transgressions against the vow of non-violence include all forms of cruelty to animals and human beings. Many centuries ago, Jains condemned the common practice of animal sacrifice to the gods as evil. It is generally forbidden to keep animals in captivity, to whip, mutilate or overload them or to deprive them of adequate food and drink.

3. Vegetarianism

Except for allowing themselves a judicious use of one-sensed life in the form of vegetables, Jains would not consciously take any life for food or sport. As a community we are strict vegetarians, consuming neither meat, fish nor eggs. We confine ourselves to vegetable and milk products only.

4. Self-restraint and the avoidance of waste

By taking the basic vows, the Jain lay persons endeavor to live a life of moderation and restraint and to practice a measure of abstinence and austerity. Regular periods of fasting for self-purification are encouraged.

In their use of the earth's resources Jains take their cue from "the bee [that] sucks honey in the blossoms of a tree without hurting the blossom and strengthens itself". Wants should be reduced, desires curbed and consumption levels kept within reasonable limits. Using any resource beyond one's needs and misuse of any part of nature is considered a form of theft. Jain faith goes one radical step further and declares unequivocally that waste and creating pollution are acts of violence.

5. Charity

Accumulation of possessions and enjoyment for personal ends should be minimized. Giving charitable donations and one's time for community projects generously is a part of a Jain householder's obligations. That explains why the Jain temples and pilgrimage centers are well endowed and well managed.

It is this sense of social obligation born out of religious teachings that has led the Jains to establish and maintain innumerable schools, colleges, hospitals, clinics, houses, hostels, orphanages, relief and rehabilitation camps for the handicapped, old, sick and disadvantaged as well as hospitals for ailing birds and animals. Wealthy individuals are advised to recognize that beyond a certain point their wealth is superfluous to their needs and that they should manage the surplus as trustees for social benefit.

These five fundamental teachings of Jainism and the five-fold Jain code of conduct offer the world today a time-tested anchor of moral imperatives and a viable route plan for humanity's common pilgrimage for holistic environmental protection, peace and harmony in the universe.

Understanding of Punya (Meritorious) and Paap (Sinful) Karma

In Jain philosophy karma are classified in many different ways. They are classified as Ghaati or Aghāti karma depending upon whether they subdue the qualities of the soul (Ghaati) or create physical environment (Aghāti) of a living being. The same karmas are also classified in a different way into Punya and Paap categories.

The Ghaati karma subdues the quality of soul namely Infinite knowledge, Infinite perception or vision, infinite happiness, and infinite power. Hence all Ghaati karmas are classified as Paap or sinful karma.

The Aghāti karmas are responsible for physical body, life span, mind, and social environment. These karmas are classified as either Punya (Meritorious) or Paap (Sinful) Karma depending upon the type of physical body and social environment of a person.

Paap Karma

The bondage of karma due to sinful or evil activities of the mind, body, and speech with the potential of producing unpleasant sensations is called Paap or sin. Activities such as violence, dishonesty, stealing, and unchastity, attachment to worldly objects, anger, conceit, deceit, and lust result in producing Paap karma.

Since Ghaati karma subdue the qualities of the soul, all four Ghaati karma namely; Mohaniya karma, Jñānāvaraniya karma, Darshanāvaraniya karma, and Antarāya karma are classified as Paap karmas. No Ghaati karma are classified as Punya karma.

Only Aghāti karmas, which creates physical environment of a living being, are classified between Punya (Meritorious) and Paap (Sinful) Karma. The Aghāti karma which produce an unhealthy body, a shorter life span, low social status, poverty, birth in hell, animal, insect, vegetative or similar categories are considered Paap or sinful. Hence under normal circumstances, the Paap or sinful karma are not conducive to spiritual progress and hence liberation.

Punya Karma

The bondage of karma due to good activities of the mind, body, and speech with the potential of producing pleasant sensations is called Punya or merit. Activities, such as offering food, water, shelter, protection of environment, charity, purifying thoughts, physical and mental state of true happiness, result in Punya karma.

The Punya or meritorious karmas produce a healthy body, high social status, human birth, and a longer life span. The environment created by these karma, if used properly are very conducive to our spiritual progress. Hence under normal circumstances, Punya karma is essential in our spiritual progress and hence for the attainment of Kevalgyaan and liberation.

A Word of Caution with Regards to Punya Karma

While doing virtuous activities, many a times due to ignorance or due to our ego, a person feels that because of his effort and action many people are being helped or he is a big donor. He receives a high social status and he takes a great pride of this status.

Due to this type of reflection one also acquires Paap or Ghaati karma namely Mohniya karma in addition to acquiring Punya karma for his good deeds. The Mohniya karma is the single most dangerous karma because only due to this karma one cannot attain the state of equanimity (Veetaraag-beyond attachment and aversion state) and hence no Kevalgyaan, and no liberation.

In summary, Punya karma provide human life and healthy body which are conducive to attain Kevalgyaan and hence liberation but at the same time due to our ego we also acquire Mohniya karma that hinders our spiritual progress.

Hence one can conclude that in order to attain liberation, Jain philosophy teaches us that we continuously need to do virtuous activities like helping others, compassionate to all beings, and protecting our environment. However while doing virtuous activities, one should remain very alert and should not get trapped by fame, power, high social status or frustration of not accomplishing the result.

This alertness will avoid Mohaniya karma while acquiring PunyaKarma.

Never think that Jainism teaches that Punya is karma and all karma hinder the soul to attain liberation. Only Ghaati karma and in particular Mohaniya karma hinders the soul to acquire Kevalgyaan and liberation. All Punya karmas are Aghāti karma and they do not hinder the soul to attain Kevalgyaan and hence liberation.

From individual spirituality point of view, if one truly removes ignorance (Mithyātva) and Kashayas (which are the Mohaniya Karma) one attains liberation. This can easily be achieved with the help of Punya karma because Punya karma provide proper environment.

Summary

In summary Jainism teaches us that in the initial stage of spiritual res, one should eliminate sinful activities as much as possible and put um effort in virtuous activities such as charity, helping others, improving the environment, and one's own spirituality. In general get involved in the social and spiritual up liftment of the society and self. The Punya karma acquired by these virtuous activities will provide positive or favorable circumstances such as human life, ealthy body, good social status, long life, good environment, and spiritual teachers to enhance the spiritual growth further.

Forgiveness

Forgiveness is tied directly with anger. It is a common knowledge that forgiveness is good for us. There is no religion that does not advocate forgiveness. Unfortunately most of us just go through the motions of talking about forgiveness. We say one thing and do something else. There is no harmony between our thought, speech, and action. Consequently, the knowledge of forgiveness and going through the religious rituals exemplifying forgiveness is not doing any good for us. Let us analyze the issue in detail.

Forgiveness is a lubricant prescribed by our saints to keep the human relationships smooth. They recognized the weakness of human nature and realized that the people would go thru many situations in a life span that may cause animosity and hostility.

Some of these situations are:

Disagreements:

Disagreements are a way of life and yet don't many of us display hostility towards those who disagree with us?

Misunderstanding:

Some of us misinterpret the intentions of other people and become angry and hostile to them unnecessarily.

Wrong expectations:

When our expectations of other people are unrealistic and we do not get what we want, we get disappointed and become belligerent to them at times.

Hurt feelings - knowingly or unknowingly:

Most of us hold a large ego about our values and ourselves. When someone humiliates or insults us, we get antagonistic.

Jealousy:

Jealousy breeds hate and make us lose our sense of discrimination. The typical stereotype responses to the above situations are either fast revenge or slow revenge. Fast revenge results into anger, fight and sometimes-physical injury on the spot. Slow revenge is more common in a civilized society. It takes the form of deep resentment, bitterness and hate and probably more damaging because of the duration involved. Some people cannot forget and forgive an incident for decades! The common results of these responses are strained relationships and non-productive use of precious life. The bottom line: Usually both sides lose out. However, our ego prevents us from realizing this. Many religions teach that we can escape from the harmful effects of animosity and hate by developing the virtues of humility/sympathy/understanding/tolerance. It is only by practicing all of these can we develop forgiveness. Absolute and total forgiveness is too difficult a goal for us to reach right away. Let us see if we can make step-by-step progress by looking at different stages of forgiveness.

Stage I: Preventive form of Forgiveness

Since forgiveness is difficult for us, let us concentrate on animosity prevention. Let us constantly maintain friendly relations with all. Let us clarify misunderstandings right away. Let us not let the knot get stronger. Let us be sensitive to the feelings of other individuals and exercise humility.

Stage II: Passive Forgiveness (Forgiveness involving indifference -Live and let live philosophy)

If we did not succeed in preventing animosity/strained relationship, let us do our best to resolve the situation. If we fail, at least let us put ourselves in a passive mode. In this mode of behavior, the other person is not your friend, nor is he your enemy. We may not be even on speaking terms with the other person. But let us never speak ill of him/her and always offer our prayers and sympathy. Let us remember that just because we could not get along with the other person does not mean that he/she is a bad person.

Stage III: Active form of forgiveness

This is the best form of forgiveness. This would involve not striking back even if someone has harmed you. It entails loving your enemies. This is the highest form of forgiveness. This is what the religions of the world are asking us to strive for is what was preached and actively practiced by Lord Mahavir, Jesus Christ, and many other religious leaders.

Their legacy is the following beautiful words that people remember even today:

I forgive all souls, let all souls forgive me. I have friendship with all. Enmity towards none. – Jain Scripture

Total and absolute forgiveness takes years of practice in humility, compassion, sympathy, understanding, tolerance and sensitivity to fellow beings. We can never acquire these virtues until we start melting our ego. And that is one of the reasons forgiveness is well recognized, but rarely practiced in its noblest form.

In most incidences, usually our ego, our pride, and arrogance come in the way of forgiveness. Somehow, if we admit our mistakes, we feel we have gone down. We have lost our self-respect and self-esteem. So the real barrier to forgiveness is our ego, pride, and arrogance. Here are few suggestions to overcome the barrier:

- Usually we ignore our own faults and magnify the faults of others.
- If we can understand these weaknesses, perhaps we will be a bit more tolerant and compassionate to our fellow human beings.
- When we say I forgive you, we should not imply that the other person is guilty. What we should say is that let us forget what happened and start afresh.
- If we say I forgive you, let all souls forgive me.
- We must practice a preventive form of forgiveness for our misdeeds every single day.
- Let us use the beautiful words 'I apologize' as often as we can.

Anekantvad in Jainism

• Jains believe that the complete truth cannot be explained by one viewpoint. To know the complete truth, all angles and all aspects of the given situation need to be analyzed and considered. This approach is called 'Anekantvad'-(multiplicity of views and theory of relativity).

• 'Anekantvad' is the basis of Jainism. It is the life force of the Jain philosophy. Acharya Amritchandra's Mangalacharan in the Granth Purusharth siddhupaay says –'without whom, even the worldly affairs cannot be carried out, I bow to that Anekantvad, the only preceptor of the universe

Aparigraha (Non-possessiveness) is physical Ahimsā (nonviolence), Syadvad (accepting others words in "some respect") is verbal Ahimsā and Anekantvad (multiplicity of views) is Ahimsā of thoughts. The violence begins in thoughts, then transforms in speech, and then in physical form.

- To practice Anekantvad:
- 1) Do not insist on your own approach,
- 2) Accept partial truth as expressed by others,
- 3) Accept the truth even if it is expressed by adversaries,
- 4) Accept that the truth can consist of seemingly opposing views,
- 5) Develop a strong urge to seek truth,
- 6) Believe in possibilities and
- 7) Exercise equanimity towards all.

Prominent Jain Facts

- Whatever you wish for yourself should be, what you wish for others.
- We are the masters of our destiny.
- Attachment and aversion are seeds of Karma, which is the source of misery.
- Even the most offended and powerful enemy does not cause as much harm as uncontrolled attachment and aversion do.
- One who washes away the dirty heap of greed with the water of equanimity and contentment attains the everlasting happiness Moksha.
- True renunciation consists in developing indifference towards the world, the body and the enjoyment.
- Every soul is absolutely omniscient and blissful in itself. The bliss does not come from outside.
- I am alone, pure, eternal and formless, and possessing the qualities of apprehension and comprehension. There is nothing, not even an atom that is my own.
- Shravak (male householder) or Shrāvikā (female householder) is the person who is living in a house, has unconditional faith in the teachings of Jina and at least practices the some of the partial vows (anuvrata).
- Ahimsā holds the key position in the whole scheme of the ethical discipline of the householder and the monk.
- The true religion consists of continuous act of compassion.
- All the living beings wish to live and do not want to die. That is why Tirthankars prohibit the killing of living beings.
- Just as pain is not acceptable to you, so it is with others.
- There is no fear for a person with the right perception.
- Knowledge without right conduct, accepting vows without right faith and performing austerities without self-control are all-futile.
- Right faith is the root of the great tree of liberation.
- True austerity results in the absence of desire, and absence of desire results in the salvation.

- A person with right knowledge does not lose him/her self in this material world.
- Just as a millions of lamps are of no use to a blind person, study of numerous scriptures does not do any good to a person without proper conduct.
- One should practice religion when he/she is young and healthy.
- In the ocean of the material world, right religion is the best island for supreme shelter.
- Knowledge without action (conduct) is of no consequence and action (conduct) without knowledge is of no consequence.
- A lame man can see the fire (has knowledge) but he cannot escape from it (thus his knowledge is ineffective.) On the other hand, a blind man (not knowing in which direction he is running) tries to run away from the fire (takes action) but (without knowledge) he may not be able to escape the fire.
- Unity of knowledge and action (conduct) leads to the desirable result.
- Anger (KRODH), pride (MĀN), deceit (MĀYĀ) and greed (LÖBH) add to demerit (PĀP). He who is desirous of his own well-being should completely give up these four passions.
- Anger spoils good relations. One should suppress anger by tranquility.
- Pride destroys humility. Pride should be replaced by humility.
- Deceit is detrimental to friendship. It should be avoided through simplicity.
- Greed destroys everything. One should overcome greed through contentment.
- Anger causes degradation of soul. Pride leads to a low state of existence. Deceit is an impediment (hindrance) to progress towards better state of existence. Greed spoils both, the present and the future lives.
- By renouncing passions, the soul attains the state of complete freedom, the state of Veetraag - beyond attachment and aversion. On attaining the state of non-attachment and non-aversion, the soul becomes indifferent to pleasure and pain.
- A person who is free from delusion (who understands reality) has no misery. A person who is without any longing has no delusion.

Great Men's View on Jainism

"I say with conviction that the doctrine for which the name of Lord Mahavira is glorified nowadays is the doctrine of Ahimsa. If anyone has practiced to the fullest extent and has propagated most the doctrine of Ahimsa, it was Lord Mahavira."

- Mahatma Gandhi

"Mahavira proclaimed in India that religion is a reality and not a mere social convention. It is really true that merely observing external ceremonies, one cannot have salvation. Religion cannot make any difference between man and man."

- Rabindranath

Tagore

"We learn from scriptures (Sashtras) and commentaries that Jainism is existing from beginningless time. This fact is indisputable and free from difference of opinion. There is much historical evidence on this point."

- Lokamanya Bala Gangadhar Tilak

"There is nothing wonderful in my saying that Jainism was in existence long before the Vedas were composed."

- Dr. S. Radhakrishnan

"Truly speaking, Jainism is an independent and original religion, for it is neither Hinduism nor Vedic religion, but of course it is an aspect of Indian life, culture, and philosophy."

- Shri Jawaharlal Nehru

"I am not Rama. I have no desire for material things. Like Jina I want to establish peace within myself."

-Yoga Vasishtha, Chapter 15, Shloka 8 the saying of Rama

"O Arhan! You are equipped with the arrow of Vastuswarpa, the law of teaching, and the ornaments of the four infinite qualities. O Arhan! You have attained omniscient knowledge in which the universe is reflected. O Arhan! You are the protector of all the Souls (Jivas) in the world. O Arhan! The destroyer of kama (lust)! There is no strong person equal to you."

-Yajur Veda, Chapter 19, Mantra 14

"What would be the condition of the Indian Sanskrit literature if the contribution of the Jains were removed? The more I study Jain literature the more happy and wonder struck I am."

- Dr. Hertel, Germany

"Jainism is of a very high order. Its important teachings are based upon science. The more the scientific knowledge advances the more that Jain teachings will be proven."

- L. P. Tassetori, Italy

"I adore so greatly the principles of the Jain religion, that I would like to be reborn in a Jain community."

- George Bernard Shaw

"The Jains have written great masterpieces only for the benefit of the world."

- Dr. Hertel, Germany
